With 'customer-orientation and innovation' as our strategy, Vogue Seafood has been handling frozen seafood import and at the same time distributing to Hong Kong's food service sector and retailers since 2000. To improve the quality of its imports and at the same increase the import volume, the management of the company has been introducing a wider range of seafood items from internationally verified processors and partners from abroad.

We have set up a procuring network that is big enough to cover Thailand, Indonesia, Singapore, Vietnam, Japan, North America, Burma and other Asian countries. From last year, we added more items of premium quality to our product list by buying directly from Malaysia, Australia, New Zealand and South America. As a result, our customers have enjoyed more benefits from a bigger variety of seafood products included in our one-package service.

We understand very well that the expansion and success we have achieved so far relies heavily on the quality of our products, a good marketing team, a regular and predictable supply and a good choice of different products at reasonable prices. Moreover, we realize that the key to our development in the competitive market is that we have won the support of our customers. That gives us the confidence to be more innovative and build a brighter future by providing better products to meet the diversified needs of our customers.
